Tuesday, April 26, 2022

Spencer Pollock was featured on Baltimore CBS affiliate WJZ-13, where he discussed the growing threat of cyber attacks, including the need for individuals and businesses to be more vigilant as the potential risk increases following Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

"It's a very important topic right now," said Pollock. "I think the biggest issue we are seeing is twofold. One, we are seeing increased attacks against organizations (and) commercial entities, beyond the critical infrastructure we have defined. But also, we are seeing a lot more attacks against individuals...We are assuming it is Russian actors who are going after more individual bank accounts and trying to do more scams. People need to be more vigilant."
