

James Giszczak quoted in Metromode in advance of Jan. 29 Detroit area Cybersecurity For Business event

James J. Giszczak | Wednesday, January 22, 2020

McDonald Hopkins member James Giszczak discussed the importance of being cyber savvy in a recent Metromode article in advance of a Jan. 29 cybersecurity event in the Detroit area.

Giszczak, who is co-chair of McDonald Hopkins Data Privacy and Cybersecurity Practice Group, will be a panelist at "Cybersecurity For Business" hosted by the Sterling Heights Regional Chamber of Commerce beginning at 7:30 a.m. on Jan. 29 in Utica, Mich.

Metromode's Kate Roff quotes Giszczak's belief that businesses no longer have choice in whether or not to be cyber savvy.

"Organizations of every size, and in every industry, are under attack daily from phishing attacks, ransomware, data theft, and business interruption by criminals around the globe," said Giszczak. "It's no different than any other business risk that must be understood and addressed."
